On dealing with violence:

This is an opportunity that they cannot afford to miss because it has a bearing on their life but it is also essential as mothers because the youth who perpetrate violence are the children that we give birth to. It is essential as mothers that we really talk to our children to see reason in terms of how violence affects families. Whole families disintegrate because of political violence and it is essential for us as mothers to talk to our children to desist from the proctors of perpetrating violence against other people.
